Regulations for the Implementation of the Academic Research Ethics Education Course at National Central University

Approved by the University Curriculum Committee on March 11, 2013
Verified and filed for reference at the Academic Affairs Meeting on March 20, 2013
Amended and approved at the Academic Affairs Meeting on June 15, 2016
Verified and filed for reference at the Administrative Meeting on July 17, 2017

Article 1

To ensure that all faculty, staff, and students at National Central University (referred to as NCU or "the University" hereafter) possess the correct ethical awareness and attitudes necessary for engaging in research, the Regulations for the Implementation of the Academic Research Ethics Education Course (referred to as "the course" hereafter) at National Central University (referred to as "the Regulations" hereafter) were established.

Article 2

The target audience for the course is all faculty, staff, and students at NCU.

Article 3

Postgraduate students, upon completing their add/drop procedure for the first semester after admission, are required to study the course by themselves through the online platform of the "Center for Taiwan Academic Research Ethics Education," accessible via a link on NCU's website. Students taking this mandatory 0-credit course must pass an online test to meet the passing standard. After passing the test, they can download proof of course completion, and only after they submit the proof to the undertaker at their respective department can they apply for their oral defense. Those who do not pass the test must retake and pass it before they can apply for their oral defense.

Article 4

The faculty, undergraduate students, and other personnel of the University may independently study the course on the online platform of the "Center for Taiwan Academic Research Ethics Education." After passing the online test, they can download proof of course completion.

Article 5

These Regulations, as established by the Academic Affairs Committee, shall be implemented following the verification and filing for reference at the administrative meeting. The same process applies to any amendments to these Regulations.
